

CANAL WILL NOT FIX TRAFFIC PROBLEMS

Swindon Advertiser Saturday, October 4, 2008

HERE we go again... the members of the Canal Trust and Rod Bluh and this time people from elsewhere, are wanting to persuade us all that a canal is the answer to Swindon's traffic problems!

For pity's sake, have a reality check will you?

By your own admission it could take seven or eight years to complete therefore, it would be this long before any benefits could be had cruising up the town centre.

Pray tell, how do we deal with the disruption this would cause?

As for linking up with other canal trusts, as I said in a previous letter, there are many around the country and it is known their desire is to have a network.

This is all well and good, but the minute one area blocks their ideas, another place is focused on.

Lovely for those whose hobby this is, and yes lovely situating it around the outskirts of Swindon, and including it in the Wichel development, but not through the town centre.

Perhaps I could impose my hobby on others - making papier mache objects anyone?

Instead of dreaming about pie in the sky could we dream of a park and ride in the West Swindon area?
